Zusammenfassung

I believe that creating resilient strategies is more important than ever. We are facing challenges driven by an increased focus on sovereignty, IT innovation, and geopolitical issues. As a result, the environment has become non-linear and fragile while new world orders arise. That is why bold, resilient strategies are essential for any success.

At the University of St Andrews, I deepened my understanding of international business to develop the necessary strategies and actions for the future.

During my undergraduate degree in Business Administration at the University of Münster, I interned at Accenture, where I designed a financial steering model. Following that, I had the opportunity to conduct financial due diligence at EY for global, multi-billion-dollar business transactions. I interned at Innovative Management Partner, an award-winning open strategy consulting boutique, where I focused on developing new business futures. At EY Parthenon I now work on diverse strategy projects.

Feel free to contact me! I am always eager to connect and discuss current global topics.
