Sofia Rose Haft

Rebooting the Arsenal of Democracy @ Anduril
Washington, District of Columbia, United States

Summary

Sofia Haft is a public affairs executive and strategist whose work sits at the intersection of technology, public policy, national security, entrepreneurship, and civic life. Throughout her career, she has helped leaders and organizations navigate complex challenges, build trusted relationships, and shape narratives during moments of significant change.She has worked across government, high-growth technology companies, and mission-driven organizations, including leading initiatives focused on civic engagement, election integrity, online safety, and the relationship between technology and democratic institutions. Sofia has developed a reputation for bringing together diverse stakeholders, building unlikely coalitions, and translating complex policy and societal challenges into action. Whether advising executives, supporting public institutions, or convening communities, she is driven by a belief that strong relationships and strong institutions are the foundation of a thriving society.A proud graduate of the University of Chicago and a Lieutenant in the U.S. Navy Reserve, Sofia is deeply committed to civic engagement, Jewish life, and the role technology will play in shaping our future.She lives in Washington, D.C., with her husband Michael, an entrepreneur whose journey has given her a front-row seat to the exhilaration, uncertainty, and resilience required to build a business; their two children, Sloan and Leo; and two standard poodles. Together, they embrace the beautiful chaos that comes with raising a family while pursuing ambitious work and building communities they hope will outlast them.

Lieutenant Sofia Haft is a Public Affairs Officer in the United States Navy Reserve and a graduate of the Defense Information School. She commissioned later in her civilian career through the Direct Commission Officer Program (DCO). She has supported the digital transformation of the Office of the Chief of Information for the U.S. Navy and served on assignment to the Pentagon supporting Secretary of the Navy John Phelan.

Previously, she deployed to Bahrain in support of U.S. Naval Forces Central Command, where she served as Chief Strategy Officer for Task Force 59, the Navy's first unit dedicated to integrating artificial intelligence and unmanned systems into fleet operations. Her work focused on advancing the adoption of emerging technologies across the maritime domain while strengthening multinational security cooperation. Working alongside coalition and regional partner nations, she helped highlight how innovation, interoperability, and shared maritime awareness can enhance deterrence, improve operational effectiveness, and promote stability throughout the Middle East.
